

TABLE DISCUSSION CARDS

Seven cards. Twenty minutes. Parents talking to parents.

The part that makes the night land. Print one deck per table on heavy stock, cut on the lines, stack in order with the host card on top.

THE DECK

- 00 Table host card — the rules, read aloud first
- 01 Where are you, right now?
- 02 What did the talk name?
- 03 Who taught you?
- 04 The four norms
- 05 Three other families
- 06 One thing this week

WHY IT WORKS

A stranger on a screen can name the problem. Only the couple across the table can make a parent feel less alone in it. The cards move from safe to costly on purpose — nobody's asked to commit to anything until card six, and by then they've heard five other families say the quiet part.

Three minutes a card. The host doesn't teach, summarize, or fill silence. Silence is where the honest answer lives.

PRINTING

Two sheets per deck, 4-up on Letter. Cut to the card edges. 100 lb cover or heavier — these get handled. One deck per table, plus two spares.

TABLE HOST • READ THIS FIRST

Six cards. Twenty minutes. Three rules.

- 1 Everyone answers every card. Couples answer separately.
- 2 Nobody fixes. Nobody advises. "Tell me more" is the only follow-up.
- 3 No phones on the table. Yours either.

Flip one card at a time. Read it aloud. Then be quiet longer than feels comfortable.

COACH, NOT COP.

01

WHERE ARE YOU

Which kid, what age, and what's the fight right now?

Just the facts. Thirty seconds each. This is the card where the table finds out they're all in the same boat.

WHAT THE TALK NAMED

What did the talk say that you've felt for a while but never said out loud?

Not what you agreed with. What made you exhale.

WHO TAUGHT YOU

Who taught you how to use your phone — and how's that going?

Nobody taught them. Nobody taught us either. Answer honestly about your own habits before you answer about theirs.

THE FOUR NORMS

Basic phone first. No smartphone before 14. No social media before 16. More real-world freedom.

Which one would cost your family the most?
Which one is already true in your house?

THREE OTHER FAMILIES

If you knew three other families at this church held the same line — what would change for you?

Look around the table. You might be sitting with them.

ONE THING THIS WEEK

Name one thing you'll do before next Sunday. Say it to the table.

Small counts. "Phones charge in the kitchen starting tonight" is a perfect answer. Someone at this table will ask you about it.
